

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When printing is performed by a stencil printing machine, a designation display 25 of a message is displayed for prompting input of a message, thus enabling message information to be inputted thereto. Then, contents specified on the designation display 25 of a message are set as the message information, and message-added print data is transmitted to the stencil printing machine. Thus, in the stencil printing machine, the contents of the message are submitted to a user operating the stencil printing machine, separately from the print data.